

Dear Jr. High Youth Worker,

One of the things I enjoy about ministry to young teens is that I often get the chance to take something they've heard about their entire lives and help them understand how it can actually impact their lives! It seems like small groups are one of the best places for this to happen because of the conversational and relational nature of a smaller setting.

I would venture to guess that the 10 COMMANDMENTS is definitely something your students have heard about and may even be able to recite from memory, but do they really understand what following those commandments looks like in the life of a twenty-first century junior higher? Is it really possible that what God expected from his people thousands of years ago is still what he expects from his followers today?

Like just about everything at Simply Junior High, this resource has the ability to be easily tweaked, twisted, and turned inside out in order to make it fit the needs of your students more specifically! This material is simple to use and will save you lots of time, which will allow you to focus on loving your students and training volunteers.

Thanks for allowing Simply Junior High to partner with you from a distance!

Living life to the fullest,
